

INTRODUCTION

I greet you. My name is Ed Rychkun. Thank you for manifesting this journey you are about to take. You have brought into your life a new doorway. This doorway is partially open and what is behind it will engage your mind in a new experience. If you are new to the New Age or commercial dialogue you are going to be pushing the boundaries of your spiritual and financial knowledge. The New Age may seem like a fantasy to you, and the financial side will bring you into a different reality. However, if you come to this doorway with an open mind, you should find empowerment here. If you are already familiar with the New Age, then you will certainly find the secrets revealed behind this doorway empowering. Behind this door you will find a new prosperity and a new, and deeper understanding of your Divinity.

The issue is this. Many of you wonder why life is so difficult. Many cannot understand why the treadmill never stops. No matter how much you work, the money always seems to flow away. There is an answer for this concern, though it may surprise you. The bottom line is you have been caught into a spiritual and commercial illusion that I call the Matrix. Your journey in this book will reveal the secrets of this Matrix and how the commercial and spiritual illusions that comprise this Matrix have been hidden from you in order to keep you enslaved in quiet ignorance. It is not a permanent slavery however, My experience is that once you know the “secrets,” the system which keeps you enslaved has no power over you. Once you know the “secrets,” you find empowerment. You begin to take your power back and you quickly and easily banish the old world patterns of slavery and servitude and step onto a new Path to a new world and a new way of thinking. I firmly believe that this is the fast track to prosperity.

At first, this may seem like just another ploy to sell something or expound more meaningless propaganda. However, consider this. Every day it seems we awake to a conscious world where there is struggle, strife and anger. We intermittently capture a few joyful moments here and there with a drink, a holiday, some TV, a party, or a new toy. You know the drill. Our “reality” is filled with dramas of poverty, conflict, war, materialism, racism and constant struggle for worldly possessions. There is intermittent happiness. We struggle to keep our material possessions or struggle to get more. There seems to be so many things that make us unhealthy and sick. So much of our daily efforts bring confrontation and negative stuff. It is all so insidious and creepy that any joy we get comes from watching the news to see who is getting a worse deal. We are caught in a whirlwind of uncompromising commercialism, media bombardment, and disillusionment about religion, money and government. Everyday there is another terrorist plot, war, disease, scam, or political lie.

When will it stop?

We drum to the banks, the money system, taxes and the government regulation that insidiously erode our life quality. We have become slaves to commercialism and religion, knowing deep down something is not right. Something siphons our energy and our essence, and more important, our money. We turn old and dry. We become crusty and puffy as our life energy is siphoned away. There never seems to be enough as we walk life’s treadmill. We shrug it all off as if it has to be. That’s life, we say and besides, there is always some poor soul who is a lot worse off than me.

“I’m a good person,” we say.

“God likes me,” we intone.

“There is justice in the world,” we lie to ourselves.

This is the Matrix we live in.

We are slaves captured in an illusion that drains us, corrupts us and drowns us. We believe we are free, but we are not.

And this brings me to the New Age. So what is this New Age thing all about? If you can read through the lines and the massive information explosion about it, the New Age is about enlightenment, awakening, and awareness about a Divinity that provides joy, abundance, harmony, a healthy long life, and a world free of conflicts and poverty. Those who write about the New Age tell us it is a Divinity calling within us all. It is our natural calling. We are in a time of transition from our old age of materialism to the New Age of spiritualism. It is a positive, joy filled alternative to the negativity so prevalent and it is available to anyone willing to open the door and walk in.

Here is the perplexing enigma. For the vast majority of people trying to survive, the door is not too visible. On top of that, there is a large chasm that lies between these two worlds. The New Age Spirituality promises a new belief system of abundance, joy, happiness and truth. That is our birthright. We are told we have great powers if we but look within and tap into them. But how do we look within? Does the truth really set you free? What is the truth? How do we walk the talk of a New Age world not dominated by fear of losing what we have aspired to gain? But, what if this New Age stuff is true and it is really happening? Can I ignore it if there is a chance to make my life so much better? What's the secret? To most this is a perplexing dilemma. However, there is help. Attempting to answer some of these questions is why I wrote this book. A few years ago my questions were the same and my confusion and doubt just as deep as yours may be. Since then I have found answers that are satisfying and empowering to me and now I wish to share these answers with you.

So who am I and what gives me the authority to write about this topic?

Let me give you some background.

Since I graduated from University (many, many years ago it seems) I have pursued a business career. Having a degree in Mathematics and Geology gave me my initial entry to the business world. My parents were very poor and having emigrated from the Ukraine, they worked hard and were happy to have any job. I was told that I must go to school because what I learned would make me successful and lead me to a better life than them. I took their advice. I went to school, then University. After that, for decades I worked for major and minor corporations. I learned the commercial game. I collected titles as one would collect postage stamps. It started with Operations Research Analyst, Exploration Field Supervisor, Supervisor of Research and Development, Manager of Data Processing for Placer Dome. Then here was a short haul with a small computer company called Geomin Computer Services Corporation as Vice President of Marketing. Then there was a calling with Canada's largest coal company as Manager of Research and Development, then Director of Information Services. But that was only the start. As I published many technical papers about new computer algorithms and graphics, the recognition prompted an invitation from IBM South Africa to work as an Special Industry Consultant. Well, two years later, it was time to get away from the giant corporate world to a small company again in Vancouver called Lynx Geosystems. Here the titles of CEO and Director stuck for over a decade. During this time I became a writer, published 10 books and had my own publishing company.

The growing issues with corporations and their draconian philosophy began to sit uneasy with me. To deal with that uneasiness, I wrote and published a business satire called "How's Your AQ Today?" exposing the underbelly of corporate executives and how they stay in power. There was a growing discomfort with my roles in the corporate world and what you had to do to survive. So I resigned. A year later the company went bankrupt terminating my financial settlement. So it was time to work for no one. I vowed to stay "at the top." I entered the world as a free enterpriser/entrepreneur, as an Owner and Special Business Consultant in offshore structuring and wealth management. This led to Co-founder, VP of Finance and Chairman of the Board of an offshore private bank in the Caribbean. Then it was Director and Chairman of Business Valuation for an Offshore Mutual Fund. This then became a platform for CEO, Director, Principle, Founder, and a host of other titles for a multitude of companies and ventures scattered around the planet.

So why do I tell you this? Well I want you to know that the titles and corporate dramas come with knowledge about the commercial system we live under. My experience in the bowels of the business world have given me in depth knowledge about the commercial system. I cannot say that I am overly proud of many of the titles I accumulated because of the things you do and the nefarious game you play to survive. However, I feel no guilt. I know now it was all simply part of my journey. Everything I have done up until now has prepared me to write this series of books. Besides, as far as titles are concerned, these days the only one that is of any meaning or value to me is Reiki Master, soulmate and sentient human.

Now, I am transformed.

I had spent almost a lifetime of climbing ladders in corporations and striving for material gain because that was the norm. Along the way, I began to see how many rules and regulations, how much stupid draconian behavior you had to use to stay on top and keep the balance sheet in good shape. It was incredible how easy it was to go amok of the tax people, the securities people, and the banks. Everywhere there was a rule that siphoned energy and money out of the company or the people. Many times we came in conflict with the International Banking system, the CRA and IRS, the SEC and I began to realize that these governments, Banks and Authorities rule our worlds more than we could ever imagine. Then things started to diverge for me. I took on a new mission. Our focus (my focus) in business became one of trying to help others protect their assets, reduce taxes and find new non-domestic ways of growing their wealth. In many cases this led to trying to help people who had been beaten up and crippled by the tax securities and banking systems. The governments and international banking system did not like what we were doing. They were moving to close down the offshore business. We ran into conflicts. It was here that my exposure to the banking, legal, taxation and governments became intense as research became the name of the game.

It was this exposure to the banking, legal, and taxation system, along with the many dramatic conflicts, that provided the basic motivation to help others protect themselves. As I learned and read, I began to understand that this entire system was not “real” in the sense that it had an independent existence of somebody in control. It was all just an illusion. It was a cleverly engineered system designed to keep us powerless and poor. It was the Matrix orchestrated by some clever Elite to siphon energy (i.e., money) from the slave. A nightmare by any other name! They created the cunning commercial and spiritual boxes I lived in. The spiritual box was designed to make me believe I did not have any power and the commercial box was designed to keep me poor. However, as I began to uncover the secrets of how this was implemented (over many centuries) it started to become clear to me that there was a way out. I began to build a pathway out and it took me on a journey into the spiritual side of my life.

I suppose you are asking now where, in all this talk of finance and banking, does the spiritual side of things enter this journey? Well, you have probably already got the picture. The journey was one that went from helping myself get free of the Matrix to helping others. Along the path of discovery, and as I began to uncover the nature of the illusion, I realized there was a lot I could do to help others. When I became aware that the banks and the tax system had fooled me into slavery, and stolen my labor, I began to formulate my aggressive attack. I was ready to take my soapbox and cry out to the world.

It was a natural that as my focus changed from helping me to helping others, a spiritual component would manifest itself. Along the way, a good friend gave me some books to read and those books triggered a new awareness that led to more research and a continued awakening. This time I uncovered more truths to add to the commercial conundrum. Much to my surprise I realized there is no God to worship. There is no judgment to worry about. There is no heaven and hell. World religions are designed to hide the truth of your Divinity and power. They play a part in maintaining and re-creating the commercial and financial illusion. Weird to think but the commercial system and the religious system act in concert to disempower and enslave. It is all part of the same plan.

What were the truths that I revealed?

What are these secrets that I uncovered?

Well, what about this as a start.

There is no real money. Money is merely a debt instrument. It is a way to sell you the idea that you owe somebody (or some institution) something. We can never ever pay the debt we accrue. The system prevents that. Banks loan you your own money. You do not own any real property. You and your children are being used as human capital. You are slaves in a system that exists only because you agree to follow the rules. In truth, a human cannot be named in a Statute or Act. A human does not have to pay tax. You are free. You have never lost any of your basic rights and freedoms. You follow the rules, play the good little slave because you believe in the system. Your national governments are in receivership to the IMF. The CRA and IRS are agencies that report to the world Elite. The rich get stinking rich on the backs of the people who get poorer every day. There is much, much more but this is enough to start.

This is the Matrix we live under.

The spiritual focus added another element. What I learned in business was that three magic words BELIEF, INTENT and MANIFESTATION make things a reality. As I learned about spiritual things, it became loud and clear that I was caught in a spiritual and commercial illusion that could be resolved not by conflict and aggression or attacks on the Matrix but by a positive constructive process using belief and intent in order to manifest a new system. You can't beat the system while fighting it from within. It starts with belief. I had to uncover enough secrets to change my belief system and believe that something else was possible. I had to learn that I had the power. I had to wake up and understand the Matrix I was in to initiate the intent needed to change the system. This was not simple. Having discovered a new doorway, I still had to open it and walk in. But it was peering in that door and uncovering the commercial illusion segment of my journey where I learned empowering tactics and ideas that allowed me to walk through doorways without fear or reservation.

So that is what the book is all about. This fictional text is designed as a sharing of my journey. It starts with two little light entities who have volunteered for a special mission to planet Earth. They have forgotten who they really are. They have no idea of what powers they have. They have been incarnated into bodies and immediately plugged into the Matrix, just like you and me. Their powers have been subdued and atrophied. The book will take you on a journey with Tom and his wife Pam as they become aware of the Matrix and how it has been imposed on them. In their journey, they meet another couple John and Joy who completely transform their belief systems and force a new awareness and revelation about the commercial and spiritual illusion. The book takes you through a segment of their lives as they uncover new truths and new ways of existing in the world. As they uncover the deceptions along the way, they build a new spiritual foundation that allows them to “unplug” from the Matrix and launch their individual journey to freedom and prosperity. They break their chains of spiritual and commercial bondage. They discover the doorway and they set themselves free.

The main point, the message of the book, is this; you are a grand and glorious being of light. You have amazing powers and abilities but the truth about yourself, the powers within, have been cloaked by the Matrix.

You need to wake up from your sleep.

You need to open a new door to walk through, without fear or reservation, into a realm of spiritual power and prosperity. Keep in mind that this is not a book of advice. It is simply a record of my discovery and awakening. It is my journey set into fiction and dialogue. It answers my questions; big questions. Questions like:

Is there a genie in a bottle? I now believe there is. The genie is you.

Is there a way to live longer and be happier? Yes, but you have to learn a new way of thinking and understanding the world.

Is there a chance that one can miss out on something grand? Yes, you have to wake up otherwise you will sleep through it all.

Are there rewards beyond comprehension? Absolutely!

It is time to learn who you really are and find out the secrets and the truth about the prosperity of God and Spirit.

It is time to leave the old world behind.

Return to a universe of peace, prosperity, and abundance. The Divine World Order awaits you. Take the first step. Take it without fear! Walk through the door.
